

questions for discernment.

- What topics in the news do you care about?
- What blogs are you reading?
- Who are you retweeting/sharing?
- What does life look like around you?
- What keeps you up at night?
- What “issues” are you drawn to in the Bible?
- Where have you been?
- What dominates your prayers?
- What do you wish your church was more involved in?
- What’s the first thing you want others to know about what a Christian is? Why? (How have your experiences informed that?)
- What have been the most formative events?
- What are you and your friends talking about?

writer research.

- What gives you the credibility to write about this?
- Who else is writing about it?
- What books are agreeing/disagreeing with your position?
- Who are you writing to?
- Who specifically do you want your book to change the conversation?
- What does the Bible say on that topic?
- How and where is society/Christian culture talking about this? Articles? Blogs? Books? In what form do you want to communicate?
- What makes your story/idea distinctive from other books in this arena?

my mission.

I am called to write this for God's kingdom.

With these words, I will:
